The State University of New York College at Brockport is a comprehensive four-year college. Founded in 1835, the institution became a Normal School in 1867 and a member of the State University of New York in 1948.

The College is located in the Village of Brockport (population 9,800), which lies along the banks of the old Erie Canal. Brockport is 16 miles west of Rochester and 60 miles east of Buffalo. Much of the 591-acre campus is large areas of open land and untouched woodlots. The College is within a few minutes' walk of movie theaters, churches, restaurants, and shops.

SUNY Brockport's many outstanding facilities include one of the finest libraries in the SUNY system, with a computerized catalog for quick, easy reference to more than 500,000 volumes, 3,000 periodicals and almost two million items on microform; an extensive network of computer terminals throughout the campus; a remarkable physical education complex; and a modern performing arts and exhibition center.

With an enrollment of some 8,500 students, SUNY Brockport combines the educational opportunities of a major university with the personalized environment usually associated with small colleges. A wide range of academic programs is offered, including 38 undergraduate majors, and graduate programs in 24 areas. The College offers 25 study abroad programs that help make Brockport the most internationally oriented of all SUNY colleges.

SUNY Brockport's excellent faculty is composed of dedicated individuals who enjoy teaching and conduct first-rate scholarly research. More than 50 Brockport faculty members have received the Chancellor's Award for Excellence since its initiation in 1973. Seventy-five percent hold doctoral degrees. All enjoy an environment in which teaching is the primary focus.

Emphasis at SUNY Brockport is on the individual. Through such special programs as Delta College, cooperative programs with other colleges and universities throughout the world, the Bilingual-Multicultural Program, and numerous others, Brockport meets each student's specific educational needs.

This year, the College celebrates its 131st year of quality in education.

ROBERT W. STRAYER
Professor of History
Commencement Speaker

In 1997, Professor of History Robert W. Strayer, a member of SUNY Brockport's history faculty since 1970, received the Chancellor's Award for Excellence in Teaching. In the last six years he taught a wide range of courses, including Soviet history, modern world history, and African history. He has served a wide spectrum of students from history majors to General Education students to those enrolled in SUNY Brockport's unique Delta College as well as Honors Program students. Strayer is known both for the rigor of his courses, and for the immense care and concern he shows for every aspect of student learning.

Professor Strayer has served the college in recent years as the chair of the Academic Quality Committee and he helped to launch one of the newer traditions of excellence at SUNY Brockport, our Fall Academic Convocation.

Finally, Professor Strayer is also a well-respected scholar. A graduate of Wheaton College (IL) and the University of Wisconsin at Madison, where he received his doctorate, Strayer is the author of the widely used college history textbook, The Making of the Modern World: Connected Histories, Divergent Paths: 1500 to the Present. His other books include the recent Why Did the Soviet Union Collapse?, Kenya: Focus on Nationalism, and The Making of Mission Communities in East Africa.

GARTH FAGAN
Distinguished Professor of Dance
Commencement Speaker

Since 1970, Distinguished Professor of Dance and professional choreographer Garth Fagan has concentrated his energies on teaching and training dancers, and developing repertory for what began as the Bucket Dance Theatre, now Garth Fagan Dance. Founder, artistic director and president of Garth Fagan Dance, Fagan's creative genius and tireless pursuit of perfection has earned him critical acclaim and established him as a world-renowned professional who is known for his unique dance technique, Fagan Technique. Critics agree, he is "one of the great reformers of American dance," "a true original," and "a genuine leader."

Fagan's love of dance is equaled only by his love of guiding his students into gifted dancers and mature individuals. "The personal reward of seeing a human being grow, trying new areas of life like dancing, is extremely rewarding. I can see the light in their eyes."

Fagan is one of only 25 American scholars, artists, professionals and public figure to receive the title Fulbright 50th Anniversary Distinguished Fellow. Fagan recently received the Outer Critics Circle Award for Outstanding Choreography for Walt Disney's The Lion King which opened on Broadway last fall. A veteran of the stage, Fagan choreographed Duke Ellington's Queenie Pie (1986) at the Kennedy Center. He also choreographed A Midsummer Night's Dream in 1988 for the opening production of Joseph Papp's New York Shakespeare Festival's Shakespeare Marathon.

A graduate of Wayne State University, Fagan's career began when he left his native Jamaica as a teenager to tour Latin America with Ivy Baxter and her national dance company. From Jamaica to the dance studios of New York City Fagan went on to study with celebrated modern dance figures Pearl Primus, Lavinia Williams, Martha Graham, Jose Limon, Mary Hinkson, and Alvin Ailey.

LI-YOUNG LEE
Honorary Degree Recipient
Doctor of Humane Letters

"I was amazed by the large vision, the deep seriousness and the almost heroic ideal," said poet Gerald Stern of his one-time student's poetry. Since those young days, Li-Young Lee has gone on to publish widely, and to garner many awards such as fellowships from the Guggenheim and Whiting Foundations, the National Endowment for the Arts, the Academy of American Poets, and the Lannan Foundation. His book Rose won the New York University Delmore Schwartz Memorial Poetry Award (1988) and his collection The City in Which I Love You was the 1990 Lamont Poetry Selection of the Academy of American Poetry. His prose work, The Winged Seed, received the 1995 American Book Award from The Before Columbus Foundation. And, recently Lee became one of the youngest of contemporary poets to be included in the Norton Anthology of American Literature (4th Ed., Vol. 2).

Also a former SUNY Brockport student, Lee has studied with Professor Emeritus Anthony Piccione, Professor Emeritus Peter Marchant; and Poet-in-Residence William Heyen and is quick to claim his time at Brockport as "...the most important year of my life." That is significant, coming from the nationally acclaimed poet who was born in 1957 to Chinese parents in Jakarta, Indonesia, which he and his family later fled. Lee and his family traveled to Hong Kong, Macao, Japan and finally the US, where Lee has since settled with his wife and children in Chicago. Although Lee is identified first and foremost as an American poet, his Asian upbringing and experience strongly influence his work, where simplicity, grace, and loveliness allow him to touch powerful emotional psychic layers, as can be sensed in the last stanza of the oft-cited "Persimmons:"

*Some things never leave a person:
scent of the hair of the one you love,
the texture of persimmons,
in your palm, the ripe weight.*

Academic Regalia and Ritual

Gown, Hood and Cap

Today's students and faculty represent the most recent link in a chain of tradition that began more than 800 years ago. The black garb worn is symbolic of the earliest universities and their connection with the church.

With the revival of learning in the 12th century, teachers emerged to meet the demand for the new knowledge. A teacher who was successful in attracting (and holding) students was called a "doctor" (from the Latin docere meaning "to teach"), or a "master."

Like most skilled craftsmen, doctors and masters eventually organized themselves into guilds, to set minimum standards to control entry into the profession. They then established forms of dress to set themselves apart from those who were not members of the guild. Modern academic regalia, from the bachelor's gown to the doctor's robe, is the descendant of this tradition, first begun on the European continent, then carried to England, and from there to us.

Although most higher education in the United States is no longer associated with organized religion, the black academic regalia has remained the custom for most institutions. Some, however, have struck out on their own. Thus, one occasionally may see Yale University's bright blue robe, or the crimson attire from the University of Chicago. SUNY officials wear a blue robe with yellow trim, the official colors of the State of New York.

Usually, the more elaborate the regalia, the higher the degree. The bachelor's gown worn by students at Commencement is the most simple, with no hood and relatively short sleeves. With the master's gown, a small hood may be seen, and longer sleeves, sometimes with slits in the sides for the hands. The doctoral robe is the most ornate, with velvet panels down the front and around the upper back (in medieval times, these often were made of expensive fur), bell-shaped sleeves, and a larger hood worn on the back.

The trim color on the hoods denotes the nature of the degree. Most frequently seen on the SUNY Brockport faculty is the blue-trimmed hood of the doctorate of philosophy, although yellow (science), light blue (education), and orange (nursing) also are present. The inside of the hood often has colors of the wearer's university, usually with one or more brightly colored chevrons against a darker background.

The origin of the square mortar board is unclear. One authority claims that originally the academic headpieces were round and soft, but later were stiffened at the four corners to prevent them from falling into the face.

Versions of the original “pancake” hat are worn by holders of doctorates from English universities and the University of Chicago. Most American doctorates favor the mortar board and a gold tassel firmly sewn in place.

Also in evidence at today's ceremony is the kente, an Asante ceremonial hand-woven cloth made in various colors, sizes and designs. Although its roots can be traced to 11th Century West African weaving traditions, the modern kente has achieved international recognition and evolved into a symbol of Pan-African camaraderie. Kente is not only beautiful; it has a symbolic significance. Each cloth has a name and a meaning, and each of the numerous patterns and motifs has a name and a meaning. Originally, its use was reserved for royalty and limited to special social and sacred functions. Today it is worn during very important social and religious occasions, including commencement ceremonies.

The Mace and Medallion

The mace, which dates from medieval times, represents the power of office and was originally intended to keep order. Today, it symbolizes the authority of the President of the College. The SUNY Brockport mace used in today's commencement ceremony was created in 1982 by renowned artist and former Brockport faculty member, Albert Paley. It is made of steel, bronze and delrin (a synthetic material), and weighs approximately 25 pounds. The mace is carried as a symbol of office by the marshal who usually leads academic processions. Faculty marshals traditionally are selected on the basis of seniority or achievement.

The College medallion, worn on a chain by the President, also was created by Paley. It is made primarily of bronze with a copper accent and bears an impression of the College seal.

A short course in the College's long heritage

In December, 1841, the Brockport Collegiate Institute opened its doors to admit students for classes and those doors remain open to this day. Doors to opportunity, to the liberal arts, to professional skills, all were first opened in that private academy. Those doors were open to students of both sexes and various races, which was not true of that era's colleges. From the Collegiate Institute's efforts to "fit young gentlemen and ladies for life," to Brockport Normal's promise to help students "prepare for a successful future," to today's college which offers a diverse student body "access to a comprehensive educational experience," our school has represented opportunity for generations of students.

The Collegiate Institute occupied a building where Hartwell Hall stands today, and though buildings have come and gone, and names and programs have changed, much of the spirit and purpose remains. The 1840s was the era of the academies, a unique institution that no longer exists, and the Collegiate Institute was one of those private academies. In that era public schooling went only through the eighth grade, with no high school. Colleges were open largely for the upper classes, for men only, and mainly white Protestant men at that. The curriculum was focused on the classical education of Latin, Greek, rhetoric and other disciplines important to training ministers, public servants and leaders of society.

Like our own era, that antebellum period was one of great change, culturally and technologically. Increasing immigration, canals, the telegraph and other developments were shaping a more complex and interdependent world. More education, new and more practical skills were increasingly in demand and the academies arose to fill these needs.

Academies were people's colleges, reflecting the new needs of a new day. They offered modern language study, teacher training, technical disciplines such as surveying and chemistry, and many other disciplines rarely offered in the colleges of the day. The academies also provided greater opportunity to women and people of color. At Brockport, for example, there was Fannie Barrier Williams, a young African-American woman who attended the Collegiate Institute in the 1860s when her sex and color would have prohibited her from attending a college.

Then, in 1867, the Collegiate Institute became a public state-supported institution known as the Brockport State Normal School.

The Normal School was a teacher training institution, still an important task here today. Again our school opened doors to many who lacked financial resources or were discriminated against because of gender or color.

By 1942 the Normal School had become the State Teachers College, and from its strong base of service and opportunity, our school developed in the years after World War II into the comprehensive and varied institution it is today.

ALMA MATER

Alma Mater, thy children raise
To thy shrine deserved praise.
Home and courage thou dost impart
To each loyal student heart.

Friendly flowers and stately trees
Lend new perfume to the breeze.
Dear old Campus, lofty halls,
Alma Mater, we love thy walls.

When the fleeting years divide
Us from thee, our gentle guide;
Still our thoughts with thee shall rest,
Alma Mater, dearest, best.

Composed by a member of the Class of 1916.

The College at Brockport's A BETTER COMMUNITY Statement

As members of the State University of New York College at Brockport, we choose to be a part of an academic community that is dedicated to principles that foster integrity, civility and justice.

As citizens of a broad and pluralistic society, we encourage those of all cultures, orientations and backgrounds to educate, understand and respect one another in a safe environment.

As members of the College community, we strive for academic and personal excellence that will enable us to achieve lives of productive work, personal enrichment, and useful citizenship in an increasingly interdependent world.

As individuals who work, study or live in this College community, we affirm our rights to freedom of expression and association, and the belief that they must be exercised responsibly.

The spirit of building a better community is best served when the ideals of integrity, civility and justice are expressed and debated with tolerance and good will.
