STONE STREET, ROCHESTER, N. Y. MAIN 2145. Copyrighted, 1922.

THIS WEEK IN ROCHESTER is being read by 15,000 or more people weekly. The business message that it carries to this large list of prominent readers certainly gives good returns to the advertisers. The system of distribution is made through the generous efforts of its advertisers and in all cases it acts as a trade bringer. Send 15,000 people into eighty different distributing points weekly, and what would you suppose would be the result? Ninety-five per cent of those who go into these places of business are now regular patrons. THIS WEEK IN ROCHESTER directed this stream of business to those places. Now only thirteen months old, this publication is becoming more popular every issue and the demand is beyond the expectations of its publishers. Comparing it with publications of similarity in other cities, it is said by those who know that "it is the best CITY BOOSTER between the two oceans." Publications with life and ambition act as a "crutch" to any crippled or lame city, but Rochester was never in the crippled class,—it was never in an ancient state, nor was it ever known to be slow. It's the busiest, liveliest and best old town on earth. That's THIS WEEK'S slam.

"YOU CAN'T KEEP A (GOOD) CORK DOWN"

A little cork fell in the path of a whale
Who lashed it down with his angry tail;
But in spite of his blows
It quickly arose
And floated serenely before his nose.

Said the cork, "You may flap and splutter and frown,
But you never, never can keep me down;
For I am made of the stuff
That is buoyant enough
To float, instead of to drown."

FLYING LOW

Silas (in a whisper)—"Did you git a peep at the underworld at all while you wuz in New York, Ezzy?"

Ezra—"Three times, b'gosh! Subway twice an' ratscellar once."

A new motion picture star makes her bow to screen fans in "At the Stage Door," at the Piccadilly Theater for the first four days of the week. She is Lillian (Billie) Dove, a former member of the Ziegfeld "Follies" forces and star of "Sally" last season. The last three days of the week an old star, Mrs. Irene Castle, will return to the Piccadilly screen in "French Heels" after an absence of more than two years from the films.

THE RIGHT MAN IN THE RIGHT PLACE

Commissioner Harry J. Bareham of the Public Safety Department deserves the praise of the community for ousting recalcitrant members of the police force, also for severely punishing policemen guilty of minor offenses. The Commissioner is broadminded, always alert to his duties and responsibilities, and has the solid support of the decent element, which rules, in his efforts to cleanse the police force of undesirables. It is hoped by all good citizens of Rochester that Commissioner Bareham will continue his good work in purifying "The Finest," and remove forever the suspicion of the "wool being pulled over his eyes."

The police are empowered to enforce laws, and members of the force realize now that Commissioner Bareham is Commissioner in fact as well as in name. It is a pleasing deviation from the old regime.

Two policemen were kicked out, one for being intoxicated while on duty, the other for brazenly flourishing his service revolver at a motorist. Infractions of rules of this kind used to be winked at, the offenders "covered up," and facts shielded from public gaze. Not so now. Commissioner Bareham believes in pitiless publicity, and plays the game with his cards spread on the table face up. The taxpayers place confidence in him, and higher honors await a public official who performs his duties as painstakingly and courageously as does Commissioner Bareham.

In addition to dismissing two policemen, the Commissioner also imposed a fine of $50 on a policeman for fighting, and $25 on another policeman for a similar offense.

What will be done with the policeman who was publicly rebuked by a trial jury is not stated.

Also, there is silence as to what Commissioner Bareham's investigation has developed in the system at police headquarters by which prisoners were "sentenced" without being taken into court, as required by law. Several local newspapers have editorially denounced this system, which is likened to the method used in Russia. A sweeping investigation by Commissioner Bareham of the number of girls "sentenced" without being taken into court may disclose startling facts. There is rumor that the grand jury recently started an investigation of this kind.

Getting Ready for Spring House Cleaning

Not long before there will be a general cleaning up and renovating in hundreds of Rochester homes—for house cleaning time is here.

Curtains and draperies, wall paper, interior decorating, rugs, furniture, are among the things that will be needed to put things to rights.

WHAT PROTECTION HAVE OUR GIRLS?

Tender as springtime blossoms, unaccustomed to the rigors of maturity and innocent of the inevitable consequences of wayward pranks, the high school girls engulfed in the latest moral storm were as frivolous, frolicsome and unconcerned as unblemished children of their age when they were called upon to subscribe to affirmation of their scandalous misconduct with a group of boys. This moral tragedy brought gloom to many homes, caused deep sorrow for their mothers and relatives, and blotted their own happy young lives with ineffaceable marks.

The boys blame the girls. Maybe in the court trials it may be explained who plucked the apple.

Women's clubs are amazed at the extent of this scandal. A moral survey of the city is promised. Fathers, mothers and relatives of school girls are aroused. A protective guard for the innocents is demanded. One clergyman has already recommended a strong-arm squad to make the streets safe for girls.

Some of the girls involved in this last scandal are classed as "tough," and their knowledge of human frailties is significantly broad. It is said they laughingly admit their indiscretion, and give little or no thought of the future. Fortunately they have been saved from permanent humiliation.

The "Herald" quoted the Jefferson High School principal as saying he suspected months ago that certain students were delinquent. Why was he silent?

Also, how can such immoral practices be so widely committed if the police are doing their duty? What has the police officials to say in explanation of recent statements to women's clubs that "Rochester is the most moral city?"

It is time the clergymen and women took decisive steps to protect our young girls.

POISONED BY TINCTURED BOOZE

"I do solemnly promise to abstain from intoxicating liquors for a period of one year."

Which says that a prisoner in Police Court took the pledge. How come? This unfortunate happened to bump into a policeman's arms, and being gloriously loaded, and seemingly very proud of it, was taken by the law. The prisoner's breath indicated a tilt with "ether whisky," which appears to be a favorite dope peddled by bootleggers. Whether the prisoner knew or realized the significance of a "dry" pledge is not known, but he promised under oath not to drink "heavy stuff" for the coming twelfth-month. It is dollars to doughnuts he is celebrating in the old-fashioned way the taking of the pledge.

What a farce is prohibition. Can you picture a man living in a supposedly bone dry country being forced to take the dry pledge? The picture was real, and should have been reeled.

The movies also passed up another thriller when they neglected to mug the twenty-six drunks arrested Sunday. Rochester was as moist as the Atlantic Ocean, and twenty-six succeeded in getting arrested, while several were hauled to hospitals to have the poison pumped from their tummies. Bootleggers are said to be doing a thriving business in Rochester, peddling rank poison. What is being done to stamp out this moist plague? Saloons are flourishing, whisky of doubtful quality is being sold, it is said, and beer is as plentiful as in days of old.

Rochester is the bootleggers' paradise, and they ought to be arrested for getting money under false pretenses if not for violating the dry law. The legitimate customer, possessing a genuine prescription given by a physician for the lawful quantity of whisky, is not protected, and is fortunate if he or she is not poisoned by the tinctured stuff. Certain physicians have abandoned the practice of writing whisky prescriptions for fear of their patients being poisoned.

THE OTHER FELLOW'S GUSHY LOVE LETTERS

Dis you ever read another fellow's love letters? There is sentimental appreciation in seeing how gushy some romantic wooers really are, and just how there are hundreds of young gallants in Rochester and other Western New York points hoping the newspapers will not publish names and addresses found in letters written to a fake matrimonial agent, registered at a hotel here. The letters are in possession of the government, and will be used as evidence of the fakir's method of inducing would-be husbands to open their pocketbooks in vain hopes of meeting the right girl. A personal ad was used to draw on the heart-aching suckers, and their effusive messages of love, as expressed in the letters, made old-timers sneer and smile.

There is one born every minute.

In the personal ad it was stated that a "beautiful"—they are always beautiful in print—girl of twenty-six years was seeking a husband, and several hundred men fell for the game. One wrote that he did not have a bank account, but owned a Ford touring car. Another admitted that he was "tall and handsome," but out of a job, and having nothing else to do was willing to get married.

A school principal from a nearby village wasted a valuable sheet of paper and a two-cent stamp to inform this "girl" that his soul was "burning" for a life partner. If this educator's salary is based on his knowledge of English grammar and punctuation—not including his love—then he is receiving about $750 a year. His romantic appeal to the girl was sadly marred by mis-spelled words, ragged punctuation, and worse penmanship.

"If you are looking for a man with money do not look for me," wrote one hopeful, who acknowledged being twenty-four years old, and innocent of previous love affairs. "I have no money, but am a railroad man with a steady job, and stay home nights," he continued.

The assets of another admirer of this female dream were summarized by him as follows:

No. 1—I do not drink or smoke.

No. 2—I have never asked a girl to marry me.

No. 3—I have never been kissed excepting by my mother.

No. 4—I have a boathouse at Sea Breeze.

No. 5—I earn $200 a month, and if I marry my wages will be increased.

No. 6—I love moving pictures.

A PITIABLE SIGHT

"Queen of the Snow Birds," is the title bestowed on a woman, familiarly known in "dope" circles as Florence. This woman is thirty years old, and is a confirmed addict of the dope habit, cocaine being her specialty. It is said her body and limbs are literally blotched with "gun shots" and that she has been seen to "shoot" dope into the roof of her mouth to get speedier effect.

Florence's husband is in the penitentiary, having stolen to get money to buy "snow," and she mourned (?) his enforced absence by associating with another drug addict. This unfortunate also yielded to temptation.

The experiences of this woman read like fiction. Reared in clean, healthy home environments, surrounded by comforts that moderate means would command, Florence enjoyed the wholesome pleasures of her set until she was introduced to the insidious pleasures of the needle. From a happy, care-free, healthy girl, Florence turned to the vicious pastimes of the man she loved, and has fallen with him to the depths of disgrace.

Physicians agree that only the most depraved resort to "shots" in the delicate tissues lining the mouth, and they hold out little hope for Florence's rescue from the habit.

There is a startling increase in the number of dope users, and physicians cannot attribute any plausible reason excepting that persons accustomed to certain allowances of whisky and other strong liquors and, deprived of their usual portions, find solace in the "gun."

Let me live in a house by the side of the road,
Where the race of men go by—
The men who are good and the men who are bad,
As good and as bad as I.

I would not sit in the scorner's seat,
Or hurl the cynic's ban;
Let me live in a house by the side of the road,
And be a friend to man.

SCANDALS ROCKING THE CITY

A certain high school was rocked to its foundation by disclosures of scandalous misconduct by a number of its students, boys and girls, and so notoriously conspicuous were the outrages perpetrated that the police arrested six boys on charges of violating the moral code.

Other girls have joined in the frivolities of this gay young set, it was admitted by the four girls responsible for the arrest of the six boys, and their descriptions of the "house parties" of this group form an interesting chapter in local scandals.

Now that this gay set has been exposed through their own folly in openly boasting of their immoral practices, and also by attracting attention through their painted faces, rouged lips and bobbed hair, other scandals may follow, as it is intimated in police circles that a certain high school had no monopoly in the crimson path.

If the streets of Rochester were safe for girls these scandals could probably be avoided! These youthful offenders admit holding clandestine meetings in public streets, also in their homes, and the girls confessed to having received the attention of men in the streets.

It is rumored that a mass meeting of parents of school children will be called through a Federation of Churches for the purpose of organizing a Protective Guard for school girls, to personally escort or chaperone girls to and from schools and other institutions. A protective association of this kind is needed to save our young girls, and when the truth is revealed of the hideous extent of this immoral whirl, there will be a demand for safer streets. The writer has frequently hinted that the good people of Rochester were not awakened to the real truth of the immorality rampant here, and this high school scandal is only a drop in the bucket.

It may not be generally known, but the relative of one of these school girls is said to have received illicit remuneration for assisting in her disgrace, according to rumor. The names and addresses of the girls are known to the writer; they have subscribed the same to their confessions of wrong doing.

Rochester as a regular city is one of the best governed cities in the United States. Visit fifteen different cities of similar size east of the Mississippi, and by close observation the censor will find that Rochester is the cleanest place in the east, and the best governed.

In Chicago, the President of the Musicians' Club claims that beer and wine created sentiment for music, and that buttermilk killed all the pep and harmony. He further states that if prohibition continues the people will not be able to tell the difference between musical tunes and the braying of a Missouri mule. Mr. O'Hara quotes the old-time stuff by saying that after a cocktail the first thing the drinker desired was catchy music. In past days it was a signal for a barroom scrap.

Fire escapes that are attached to Rochester buildings have been found to be in precarious condition. Over a third of them were dangerous. In case of fire, if occupants needed to use these "precarious" exits, what would have been the results? Many would be killed and injured. We might be wrong in this assertion, but it would have been a dangerous chance for 25 or 30 people on a weak fire escape to have tried to make a quick exit. Persons leaving buildings in case of fire don't have time to inspect the exits.

Ministers have got the strike fever, according to reports from Cincinnati. At a meeting of the Methodist Association recently one of the Reverends suggested a strike of the ministers of that church, with the idea of ridding themselves of many of the demands which are made upon their time. He also said that the time taken up by these church activities should be devoted to communion with God and to study of that which is best in religion and philosophy. He said that of his personal knowledge more than a hundred Methodist pastors had broken down under their task in the past few years.

The delay in the Arbuckle, Church and Obenchain cases is laid to the fact that both sexes sat in judgment and could not agree. But would men alone have done better? is asked in response.

Married people should keep a scrap-book or diary, as there are little things that occur daily which make delightful after-year reading—maybe!

Speaking of restauranting with people, did you ever notice that when the check is brought in some one of the fellows starts to tell a funny story and feigns he does not see the waiter? Instead, he grabs the check; then passes it to the man next to you and says: "I can't see the amount; I haven't my glasses with me." Or, if you do not wear glasses, he gets a violent coughing spell about the time the check is brought. Then explains (after someone else has paid the check) that coughing always renders him speechless.

In recognition of services performed as Exalted Ruler of the B. P. O. Elks for the past year, the Lodge in general presented James S. Bryan with a generous gift of a purse amounting to $2,500, a diamond stud, a gold card case and a life membership. Under the personal guidance and earnest efforts of Mr. Bryan Lodge No. 24 has made rapid strides during the past year. Activities in many ways have been promulgated and in general the Rochester Elks have enjoyed one of the most lucrative years on record. Three cheers for Brother "Jim"!

Mrs. Emma MacMahon, one hundred years old, was to have become the wife of Simoleon Toots Barry, a robust boy of 80 years. Simoleon proceeded to the place where the knot was to be tied, and waited for an unusual length of time for the bride to arrive. He became exasperated with the delay and grabbed his hat and made his escape.

"AVON IS NOT SUCH A BIG TOWN"

"How old is Ann?" used to be a favorite problem. Now it is, "How old is Max," The cables are kept hot with varying reports as to the age of the Swiss riding master, bridegroom-to-be of the granddaughter of John D. A curious lot of people we Americans are. We like to ask useless questions we can't answer about other people's strange matrimonial ventures when our own is probably just as inscrutable an enigma.

Out at Avon, for instance, a Titian-haired widow of forty-five summers, "or som'ers thereabout," played Dido to an Aeneas of 19. She was the high school preceptress, and her precepts were an unflinching source of delight to one youth in her class, rotund and rubicund with a peach bloom cheek with just a trace of fuzziness which no razor yet had touched.

He kindly volunteered to teach his mentor how to drive her new Ford Sedan. She learned so slowly—O, so slowly! She had learned to swim in just that tantalizingly slow way most thirty years ago, and had added to her knowledge of the genus homo with every passing year.

On one of these lesson drives they found themselves in the State of Pennsylvania, the State of Bliss and the State of Matrimony, all on the self-same day—and now they are finding there's more or less a State of Hell in sedate Avonian society.

The secret, kept since last October, finally was released, and the wagging tongues of gossip have wagged the signal calling for the preceptress-bride's resignation. The school board will probably replace the 45-year-old bride with a Vassar twig of 21. Should she, in a year or two, consent to be grafted onto some knarled and knotted specimen of the orchard of local aristocracy, her position as a leader in Avon society will be established beyond peradventure of a doubt.

Avon sadly lacks the spirit of the man whose birth and early and later life at Stratford-on-Avon gave the name to their town. He would have loved the school teacher and her pupil, willing victims of passion's flames. It was the play of that grand passion in such as they three hundred and more years ago which was the inspiration of all that is now regarded as the world's greatest literature.

Shakespeare would have had a keen fellow feeling for the high school lad of Avon, for Bill found himself looked up to by an oldish girl when he was but eighteen; got pinched, as it were, for poaching on Anne Hathaway's preserves.

We grow, children come and grow, by expression. Repression, the dictum of polite society, means death. When we pick off all the blossoms we get no fruit.

Milady was not alarmed by the ukase against smoking in hotels, restaurants and other public places. The State Constitution offers women the same rights as men, and no city ordinance can rob them of the smoking privilege. It is the prevailing style for girls to smoke, and Rochester's girls lead in styles.

"Thou shalt not" is turned to the wall in all public meeting places, and the girl with the $25 fag outfit is envied by her sisters.

Society men admit that a majority of girls smoke, and that this pleasure is not restricted to the upper classes. The working girl loves to sneak a "puff" when the boss is not around, and even the school girl is not immune from this temptation.

Smoking may not be approved by the "old-fashioned" housewife, whose happy ambition is to educate her children and to make the home environments delightful for Hubby. She is in a separate class from the modern girl who visualizes domestic life as a panorama of gay parties in her tincan flat, with canned foods on the table, and canned music for entertainment. Now and then the guests also are canned.

It depends on one's conception of pleasure. The girl who puffs awkwardly and grotesquely at a corktip cigarette may think she is "naughtily cute," and the girl who elects to follow in her "old-fashioned" mother's footsteps may think, too, her ideas of life are proper, so why interfere with the pleasures of any class?

G' me a light, please!

A majority of the 60,000 houses in Rochester are owned by wage-earners, and as fast as business becomes satisfactorily adjusted there will be more families free from the rent octopus. Rochester is in better condition with its employees than any other city of its size. Its business is increasing with a steady step. Its factories are all in optimistic mood and advance agents report that business is "picking up with rapidity." One thing that makes Rochester famous and gives it world-wide publicity is its prominent manufacturing plants. Ask a Hindu where the Kodak comes from and he will tell you. Ask a Boer from South Africa where Taylor thermometers are made and he will tell you. Ask a South American where the "Iron Horse" metalware is made and he will say Rochester. Ask a Siberian where the Red Cross, the "Norman" and Sterling Ranges come from and he will point toward the west. Rochester is an excellent city to live, visit and work in. It has more opportunities for a pleasant life than any other "burg" in Uncle Sam's land.

Dr. Lee A. Stone, of the Chicago Department of Health, dubbed kissing one of the most charming of indoor sports and rapped the chap-eron who would interfere when a bold youth stole a caress from a pretty girl. "There is too much prudery afloat to-day," said Dr. Stone, speaking before the conference. The Doctor probably didn't take into consideration the possible chances of transmission of some disease.

An application for permits to build eighteen single houses, 26 by 28 feet, at an estimated cost of $6,500 each, or $117,000 in all, was made to Superintendent of Buildings Simon J. Fennell Tuesday by Charles W. Collamer, a contractor. The houses are to be erected in Arnett Boulevard.

Speaking of "ether cocktails," explained by Dr. Charles Baskerville and Dr. Gwathmey of New York, the learned physicians claimed that ether and oil mixed and taken previous to an operation produced a pleasant sleep which allowed an operation and a few hours of sleep and rest following such operation with no after effect. This is different from the "bootleggers' ether cocktail" which produces blindness, nausea, paralysis and possible death.

One of the perilous tasks that has been performed in Rochester by Rochester mechanics is the repairing of the dome of the cupola on the Sibley, Lindsay & Curr Company building at Main Street East and Clinton Avenue North. The experts who took a chance at steeple chasing were Schwartz and Menzenberg, of the sheet metal works located at 46 South Water Street. This kind of a job cannot be done in cold or rainy weather. Conditions must be "just right" in order to do a good job safely.

Evil doing is so scarce in the nearby village of Montour Falls that the citizens have voted down a proposition to increase the police force. Only the keeper inhabits the jail. This would make a fine place for some of the two hundred kleptomaniacs and regular thieves which are fluttering about Rochester stores.

The jury in the case of Mrs. Mary DeField, who is claimant to six 50-gallon barrels of cider, decided that it had been illegally seized and that same must be returned to its owner. One must be careful these strenuous times and not leave even cold tea in the teapot, because during a hot spell the tea and leaves might "work" and generate a percentage of alcohol that would mean much. So beware!

Gassing is with us yet. The war is over, but every day hundreds of automobile mechanics are having their lung tissues eaten out by the fumes from the exhaust as they tune up the engines in public garages. All this is ruinously useless. Fans and ventilators would help, while an ordinary stove-pipe set so as to connect exhaust pipe with the outer air would perfectly take care of the disposition of this poison. Attention, Dr. Goler! if you are not too busy vaccinating or getting vaccinated. (Dr. Goler, at last report, boasted of forty vaccination scars. He's scared to show all his scars now. He dare not bare 'em.)

"If Winter Comes," the highly advertised Times-Union serial novel, is scattering its snow-flakes wherever Rochester's most popular newspaper gets a reading. What a disappointment! Can it be true that this staccato movie scenario, utterly lacking in elegance of diction or force of utterance, is the much heralded book eulogized by Frank Crane and advertised in the New York Times book review? If it is, Winter has indeed come, and all the flowers of expression and verdure of thought of British novelists have been covered deep under snow and ice, leaving only barren branches, where sparrows sit and hop and twitter.

If all of the vacant property included in its corporation was inhabited the population of Rochester would make Buffalo sick. Rochester's suburban territory, which is vested in farm lands, is being developed rapidly and it is stated that several lots sold by real estate dealers has fallen in the hands of people from other cities. A speculative transaction, no doubt, although Rochester is very attractive to residents of other cities.

Corporation executives, attention! Self-expression is a great rejuvenator. It creates good feeling and inspires good work. Self-expression in getting out an employees' publication once a month will be a great thing for those who gather the news items and get the jokes and jabs ready for the printer.

THIS WEEK IN ROCHESTER is in itself the sort of a book which will help put a working force in good humor and keep it fit. Add to it a four-page supplement, all their own, bound into the center of THIS WEEK, and you have a combination which cannot be beat as a mental relaxer and energizer.

He has risen to be one of the foremost motion picture directors and his production of "The Shiek," "Behold My Wife" and "Moran of the Lady Letty" are considered among the finest of pictures. Rochester-made means quality—whether it's in the film or what goes on it.

Newark, a live-wire town about thirty miles east of Rochester, has inaugurated a Swat-the-Fly crusade. Every person is requested to kill the first fly seen in or about the buildings, houses and business places. Each fly that has survived the winter is a prospective ancestor of a million pests. These disease spreaders should be eliminated in Rochester as well as all other places. Flies breed from garbage and other refuse. Keep the premises clean and start in to "smack 'em." It's great exercise, besides it is the beginning of doing away with a nuisance.

The Sagamore Apartments should relieve the housing situation in Rochester to the extent of about 170 houses. It is reported that this pretentious monument of homes will accommodate 169 families, providing there are not too many in each family. A year or so ago, some of the war workmen would have jumped at an apartment at $500 or $600 per month. Now, money has changed hands.

Tenant in New York recovered $2,500 damages for death of a child four months old, from a landlord who refused to furnish heat for his apartment. The child contracted a sickness which caused death. Possibly the fellow hadn't paid his rent, so the landlord could not purchase coal—who knows?

It is said that the Bloomfield-Lattin bill "slid" through both houses like water through a sieve. It is also claimed that several of the members of the State Assembly and Senate did not know its technical points. Laws affecting public health should be given more careful attention.

Out of our large regular circulation that circulates in the city there are 3,500 copies of THIS WEEK IN ROCHESTER distributed among Rochester hotels, which not only advertises the hotels, but has a tendency to boost Rochester to the visitors who stop at the hotels. One copy is placed weekly in each room. This circulation adds considerably to the value of the Rochester advertiser, as visitors to the city patronize local merchants in the way of taxicabs, street cars, cigars, restaurants, etc. "This Week in Rochester" is carrying the good message to visitors that should be carried, and at the expense of some other association. Our municipal boosters, desiring to place Rochester in the front ranks with other cities, should provide remuneration for just such publicity. This publication is doing more toward "boosting" Rochester according to the square inch than any other publication. The hotel circulation is only one-fourth of the general circulation, which is delivered to the many distributing points every Saturday morning. The large demand for "This Week in Rochester" is now larger than we can deliver on a gratis proposition. The more advertising space taken by the merchants, the larger the circulation.

To-day, this publication is being read by over 15,000 people. It is impossible to get hold of any past issues, as they are valued by the general public as a ready reference. All events of any account are published under each day and date for one to four weeks in advance. The owl car service and timetables of both electric and steam railroads are also handy information for all concerned.

Bill Kenworthy, manager of the Portland Club of the Pacific Coast League, has two of his players under special contracts this season.

In spite of the fact that the United States is supposed to have been dry for several years, Kenworthy has a booze clause in two of the documents signed by his players.

Each month the players in question draw down $200 less than the amount for which they signed. At the end of the year they will be handed the $1,200, providing they do not look upon alcoholic nourishment.

If they stray from the straight and narrow path, the entire amount will be confiscated by the Portland club.—New York American.

Rochester's own Hoover, State Senator Dick, says the chiropractors are unduly alarmed over the Bloomfield-Lattin bill, for the intent of the law, as explained to the Public Health Committee of the State Senate, of which he is a member, is to provide an easier way to deal with the quack doctors of medicine.

This is all right as an explanation of how a new member of the Legislature came to approve in committee and vote for, on the floor, a bill which is now a target for criticism; but it doesn't explain away the fact that if this bill becomes a law by the Governor's signature any chiropractor who diagnoses and treats diseased conditions is liable to arrest, fine and possible imprisonment, unless he is an M. D., or works under an M. D.

The assurance by a law-maker that he didn't mean it that way is about as valuable to the chiropractors and those who rely on them for health as the small boy's explanation that he didn't mean to break your window, because he was aiming at something else.

"The Orange Peel," the "Life" of Syracuse University, has been suppressed by Chancellor Day. An old alumnus took exceptions to some of its art and jokes. In the New York American of recent date the editor asks the question: "Is a girl wise to wed outside her clan?" Mathilde McCormick's mother says, "No!" In defense of her claim she quotes conditions of several prominent young ladies who stepped off into matrimonial circles. Among them was Alice Drexel Biddle, who became enamored of a world-wanderer and married him, and when she came to her senses she was in a French hospital, deserted and impoverished. She and her offspring returned to the parental roof. Juliet Brietung, heiress of a mining magnate, laughed at the men of her own tribe and ran away with the gardener. Troubles followed. Julia French, daughter of the Vandelbilts, was interested in Mr. Gerarity, the chauffeur, and married him. She repented. How many young girls, daughters of rich men, who aspire to wed a Count or Duke, or some other human being from a foreign clime whose first name amounts to as much as the name of a clam or oyster?

The over-efficiency of officers and managers of large corporations many times establish losses for their own business. This is called poor judgment. It is impossible to perfect an organization that does not have some "censor" who "crabs" the whole system. Blunders of "wise ones" who have optical illusions in financial ways many times terminate with a penurious condition. Pessimists are a part of humanity and are in opposition to nearly all new ideas. They act as a brake and in many instances "burn out their own bands." Broad minded managers and whole souled men who operate large businesses know what obstacles need to be overcome when they are associated with "pests" in business affairs.

When this section of the United States comes into mixed juries, the authorities will provide heavy screens to partition off jury rooms. In Minnesota they have made this arrangement and the Sheriff has the job of placing these screens which separate men from women jurors. We suggest they put the jury in the cells, as this would be easier and safer and would do away with all possible gossip. The foreman of the jury should remain in the corridor.

One of the types of bus being considered for possible future use in the extension of Rochester's transportation system is one driven by engines located within the diameter of the two rear wheels. Steam generated in a boiler under the hood in front furnishes the motive power, driving the wheels by means of four cylinders within each wheel, with piston rods connected with the wheel much the same as the piston which drives a locomotive engine. The engines are stationary. The wheel revolves. The exhaust steam goes back to the condenser and keeps right on working. There are no gears, shafts or differential. The engine being within the wheel, permits the chassis to be hung very low, allowing an upper deck, covered and enclosed, without making the bus top-heavy. Rotary engines will become common on busses and trucks if they work as the inventor and owners have confidence they will.

"Clip" Bostwick has done some clever clipping of Republican majorities, but he'll have to keep on clipping away for some time before he equals the record for effective clipping of a clip-clip artist out on Parrells Avenue. There's a man out there who has clipped his way to ownership of a fine home and a Cadillac car.

Probably there isn't another man in town who has produced these results with the shears and the razor. Barber Nolan does it by making a shears work faster than it had ever worked before. Eight hair cuts in an hour is his steady gait; and on a pinch he has squeezed it to ten. When asked how he had done it, Mr. Nolan remarked: "I guess it was the babies. I've had eight of them; and the faster they came the more speed I put into my hair cuts."

Seen any paper clips in coat lapels or girls' blouses? This simple device is the official emblem of The Shifters, an organization numbering thousands of members in and near New York. "The Clips" would be a more appropriate name.

Innocent enough in its original intent to encourage sociability and to break down the icy wall of restraint around so many city young people, its privileges have been so used as to bring the order into disrepute. The original "Clip" started out with five badges, costing one cent, and initiated five young people of the opposite sex, who paid some trifling sum or trinket as a fee, and straightway went out to initiate five more.

"Everybody be friendly with everybody who wears the clip" was the original and laudable idea; but as the initiators became bolder, they raised their price for admission, and actually made some poor boobs believe that once in this order they would find kiss hungry maidens waiting for them at every turn.

Why turn down a good thing because of the boobs? Here's to the "Clips!"

One of the most peculiar instances that has ever happened, besides being pitiful, is the death of the Siamese twins, Rosa and Jozfa Blazek. Jozfa was stricken with jaundice and last week lapsed into unconsciousness at a hospital in Chicago. Rosa, the other twin passed away about half an hour after her sister died. Neither of the twins desired an operation.

Jozfa left an eleven-year-old boy whose father was an Austrian who was killed in the World War. The twins were born in Czecho-Slovakia. They had accumulated considerable property in their journeyings and were planning to retire from the show business and settle down in the Czecho-Slovakian colony in Chicago.

The women had complete individual systems with the exception of the lower stomach, which they shared in common. Their parents were perfectly normal. It is likely that the bodies will be turned over to American scientists, who will examine them in an effort to discover the mystery of their existence. The twins were 43 years old when they died.

Mistakes are made in the "big town" as well as in other places. Recently Police Commissioner Enright of New York City had an ordinance adopted which prohibited women from smoking in public. When this became public, the female tobacco smoking fraternity set up an awful howl and after some investigation the Commissioner found out that it was all a mistake, so rescinded the ordinance. Now the proprietors of the Broadway smoking shops are doing a thriving business in furnishing the tufted lounging room lizards with the soothing weed. It is said that prominent women who don't "touch the stuff" rose up to champion the rights of their tobacco using sisters, denouncing any ordinance that attacks personal liberty. John F. Hyland, Mayor of New York, stands ace high with the fraternity, for the reason that in his comments about this ordinance he said: "I make it a policy never to interfere with the ladies, for they will do as they please, anyway." John was right.

If Rochester would asphalt Main Street East, beginning at East Avenue, and go as far as East Main Street bridge, we would enjoy seeing a big increase in the receipts of every business concern along that section. Complete one side of the street at a time.

THE EARTH'S ATMOSPHERE

By Dr. Emil Klein, Discoverer of Reflexo-Neuropathy

Author and Professor of Preventive and Reconstructive Physical Science
610-611 Central Building

TREATISE XXIII

The atmosphere surrounding the earth is known to extend to a height of at least forty-five miles, pressing upon the earth with a weight equal, at the level of the sea, to about fifteen pounds on every square inch of surface or 2,160 pounds on the square foot. This weight decreases in ascending mountains and increases when descending into deep mines. The great astronomer and geographer Francoeur found that the weight of the entire atmosphere is 523,260,000,000,000 tons. The atmosphere is kept in motion through the revolving action of the globe. When speaking of the atmosphere of a locality, the term air is applied, as the air of the mountains, of the cities, the country, the forests, the sea, the rooms, etc.

Air is the only gas which man and the higher animals can breathe for any length of time. Many gases are promptly fatal; others can be breathed only for a very short time. This shows the immense importance of good ventilation in crowded halls or rooms.

In inhabited districts, ordinary air yields to analysis, in round numbers, 21 volumes of oxygen and 79 of nitrogen. It contains, on an average, four volumes of carbonic acid to 10,000 volumes of air, and in the open country as low as three volumes in 10,000; above the ocean there is a mere trace, probably due to the absorption of this gas by the water.

According to Dr. Thomas Lamb Phipson, the following extraneous substances are existent at almost all times in the atmosphere of the earth: Water, carbonic acid, sulphur, chloride of sodium, sulphate of soda, iron (meteoric), silica (fossil bacteria or micrococci), desmis and foraminifera, spores of Algae, unicellular Algae (always present in rain and snow), carbonaceous matter of unknown nature, hairs (pili) of various plants, debris of human vestments, essence of flowers (odor of the air after a summer shower), vapour of characin (cause of the odor in marshes and ditches), traces of iodine and hydrochloric acid (in sea air), traces of nitric acid (in the rain of thunder storms), ammonia, dust of carbonate of lime, volcanic ash (grey, red and black), organic matter of various kinds that can be condensed in strong sulphuric acid which it turns brown.

Electricity and phosphorescence are known to be present in large quantities in all of the atmosphere of the earth, especially at the poles.

Cold air produces a higher death rate than hot air. Cold air is more dangerous than heat to aged persons. The presence of moisture increases the destructive influence of cold air. The danger from consumption is much greater in winter than in summer.

In the next issue of "This Week in Rochester" will appear: Fatigue.

Bacon—"My wife is working on a new kind of a slot-machine which she expects to make a lot of money out of."

Egbert—"Really?"

Bacon—"Sure thing; it is to be attached to a front door, and when a fellow comes home late at night he doesn't get in unless he puts in a $10 note."

"Father, I need a new riding habit."

"Can't afford it," he growled.

"But, father, what am I to do without a riding habit?"

"Get the walking habit."

What man of you, having five horses, would work three of them seven days a week and turn the other two out into the wintry fields to starve? Is the wisdom of employers any higher than this when longer hours are being urged in the face of widespread unemployment?

Henry Ford has cut his factory's working hours to forty, and announces an addition of three thousand to his working force. The five-day working week will take a few dollars out of the pay envelope of many; but it will put these same dollars into other homes where anxiety, want and distress now reign.

Meanwhile, in Rochester, the street railway men are demanding that the six-day working week shall supplant the long customary seven-day week. The vote stood 838 to 158 in favor of the six-day week. They also ask for a raise of about seven cents an hour in pay.

Now James Hamilton is just as good a fellow as Henry Ford; has just as warm a heart towards the man who works, as he has worked; but if he should deal with labor as generously as Henry does he would either give away nearly all the present earnings of his stockholders, which amount of six per cent on the Rochester properties, or would so add to costs as to bring the cost of a car ride to a dime.

A street car ride in Rochester is worth a dime if a Ford car is worth its present price, labor and capital values considered; but thousands would walk if James Hamilton aspired to imitate Henry Ford's labor policies. So, forced by the public's sense of values, he has to seem to fight labor, while always ready to meet their demands so far as public sentiment approves.

Father—"Helen, isn't it about time you were entertaining the prospect of matrimony?"

Daughter—"Not quite, pa. He doesn't call until eight o'clock."

"James, you may serve the cake that I made for Mr. Phillip's birthday."

"Sorry, madam, but my union forbids my serving a non-union product."

Mr. Bell, the inventor of the telephone, is in this country. At a meeting of subscribers it was decided that no action should be taken, as it was not altogether his fault.

"No workers are called servants to-day," says Mr. Justice Darling. "And I am informed by those who have secured specimens that very few servants could by any stretch of the imagination be called workers."

"I don't like these pictures at all," he said. "I look like an ape."

The photographer favored him with a glance of lofty disdain.

"You should have thought of that before you had them taken," was his reply as he turned back to work.

"I'm sorry, young man," said the druggist, as he eyed the small boy over the counter, "but I can only give you half as much castor-oil for a dime as I used to."

The boy blithely handed him the coin. "I'm not kicking," he remarked. "The stuff's for me."

Dry laws have so increased the profits of the California growers of wine grapes that they have given the name Volstead to one of their principal shipping stations.

ROCHESTER BOWLERS PERFORM AT TOLEDO

Rochester bowlers have contributed some good pinning in the A. B. C. tournament at Toledo during the past week. High mark in the five-men event has been set by Dick's Grand Central team, which shot games of 902, 945 and 947 for a total of 2794. Vaccaro's Grand Centrals chalked up a grand total of 2762, and is the only Rochester aggregation to cross the 1000-mark to date, winding up with 1017 in their final games. J. Birr, a member of Dick's outfit, got off to a fine start for the all-events, totaling 637. C. Hafner did the heavy hitting for Vaccaro's crew with a 605 total.

The Buonomo brothers are leading the local bowlers in the doubles with a grand total of 1221. Charley hit for a total of 646 with scores of 214, 210 and 222.

E. Piper's mark of 643 in the singles has not as yet been passed.

Jack Curtiss and Jerry Welles copped the two-men event in the Elks' tourney with a grand total of 1664. Welles averaged 215 for the four games and his partner 201.

CELTICS WIN BY SLIM MARGIN

Though the original Celtics, claimants of the world's championship, kept their slate clean in Rochester by defeating the Centrals in their third encounter of the season with the local title-holders, their victory was not as impressive as on the other occasions. The famous New York tossers won, 29-25, and their margin of four points was garnered from the foul line, the locals holding them even in scoring from the field.

ORIENTALS OFF TO GOOD START IN STATE TOURNEY

The East High basketball team moved its way through the opening rounds of the tournament to decide the state scholastic championship in rather sensational style, defeating its first two opponents by large margins.

On Friday, the Purple and Gold outfit smothered Cuba High by a 59 to 7 count. The local lads pumped in 29 baskets from the field, while holding their opponents to one lone two-pointer. On Saturday the Orientals overwhelmed Newark High, easily outclassing the visitors and running up a score of 54 to 22.

CENTRALS STOP GENEVANS, 32 TO 26

The Geneva Eagles caused the Centrals more trouble than had been anticipated at the Armory Saturday. The locals did not take the Genevans over-seriously, and after running up a large lead with comparative ease in the first 10 minutes, grew careless in checking the two boys. The latter, taking advantage of the loose defensive work of the locals, ran up the count to 13-14 before the half ended.

The confidence gained by this spurt was evident in the Eagles' playing during the remainder of the contest. They battled hard, using their speed and shooting ability to good advantage, and jumped into lead at the start of the second period. When the Central machine snapped into action along the middle of the half, however, the locals quickly piled up a comfortable margin, the final score being 32-26.
